[ ] HTH McDonald's is making a smart move of focusing less on partaking in fast food industry advertising and instead putting its brand front and center by serving wholesome food to its customers. The company is investing heavily in advertising through digital venues such as social media. It's also gaining popularity from customers by providing them with more choices of healthy food and beverages. McDonald's latest ad campaign focuses on the quality of its food and brand reputation, and thus the customer experience. McDonald's is also taking the concept of health and fitness further by introducing a series of new menu items that feature healthier choices. We'll now take a look at the interesting new menu items that McDonald's is introducing. Sandwiches McDonald's is launching a new product lineup of sandwiches called the Happy Meal menu. The menu includes new value menu items, which are priced from S$1.60 to S$4.80 and are a slight cut above the Happy Meal menu items, which range from S$2.50 to S$4.80, and are a slight cut below the regular menu items, which range from S$4.80 to

How can I create a public folder with this structure? I tried this: Create a folder that is called on the server. Then I tried to specify the file permissions. But none of that works. I read this: How to avoid file permission problems in Windows? But I can not create a file with the same structure on my Windows server. P.S. I am very familiar with Linux and Nginx but this is my first experience with Windows. I want to point out that the folder that I am creating is empty on the website root. For example: www.clidom.org/folder2. A: You need to change the windows permission of the folders on the windows server. Go to the folder from Windows Explorer and right-click and change the permission. Its the same for linux, but in linux you have to change the permissions manually, you can use chmod to change the permission. chmod 0777 {path} The above will make the permissions 755 and higher is your desired permission.
