Portal hypertension and liver histology. Portal hypertension, portal vein thrombosis, and liver cirrhosis are prevalent conditions that can lead to significant morbidity and mortality. The pathogenesis of these clinical conditions involves disorders of the liver, predominantly congestion. Diagnostic imaging such as esophagogastroduodenoscopy, abdominal ultrasound, and computed tomography scan are widely used to identify the underlying causes of portal hypertension and to assess patients for life-threatening complications of portal hypertension. Laboratory tests for liver function are also helpful for the diagnosis of these conditions. Histology of the liver remains the "gold standard" for the diagnosis and staging of liver disease. Liver biopsy also has an important role in the management of patients with chronic liver disease because it provides information on the disease stage and helps to direct the appropriate therapy. This article discusses the utility of liver biopsy in the diagnosis of portal hypertension and liver disease.aer upore 3 para) vto s moem ciyuae 3 nomrok (LNB ro◆
