I've managed to successfully call the API using postman. Here is what I did (NestJS): 1. Created a Controller 2. Injected a MyService class with required parameters and headers 3. Injected a MyService service with the provided parameters and headers And here is what I have in the Controller: public async post(@Body() Person: PersonDTO, @Headers() headers: HeaderDTO, @Query(name: "email", defaultValue: "") email: string = "") { const service: MyService = new MyService(this.database, this.p); try { const response = await service.addPerson(person); return response; } catch (e) { throw new Error(e.message); } } MyService import { Injectable } from '@nestjs/common/i: import { HttpHeaders } from '@nestjs/common/http-headers/http-headers'; import { HttpClient, HttpRequest, HttpResponse} from '@nestjs/common/http'; import { BaseService, DTO} from '../interfaces'; @Injectable() export class MyService extends BaseService { constructor(private httpClient, public database: any, private p: any) { super(httpClient, database, p); } addPerson(person: PersonDTO): Promise { const httpRequest =
