NPC is a member of the uncoordinated (unc) gene family. This study examined the expression of NPC protein during embryonic and postnatal development of the mouse submandibular gland. Immunohistochemical analysis demonstrated that NPC protein was expressed in the nuclei of submandibular gland epithelial cells at embryonic day (E) 14 and that the expression was confirmed in the adult gland. The expression of the transcript encoding NPC was examined in developing submandibular glands and in primary cultures of adult submandibular gland cells. In situ hybridization analysis demonstrated that the transcript was expressed in the nuclei of submandibular gland cells at postnatal day (P) 0 and that the level of expression increased rapidly by P7. When the gland was cultured in the absence of serum, the level of expression increased by P3. This pattern of expression indicates that the gene encoding NPC is likely to be associated with the regulation of cell-cell or cell-substratum interactions in vivo.Treatment of tibial plateau fractures with an anterior-inferior plating system in a canine model. The purpose of this study was to evaluate the ability of a novel anterior-inferior plating system to provide anatomic reduction and rigid fixation of a 3-part fracture of the canine tibia
