Qualquer ideia quanto ao par do trabalho? Look Out for Aliens Look Out for Aliens is an album by the American rock band Spectrum, released in 1976. It is the first of three Spectrum albums released that year, and the first Spectrum album to be released under the band's new management, Atlantic Records, after having been dropped from United Artists Records. The album was re-released on CD in 2002, and once again in 2007. The cover for this album was taken by Bob Gruen, the photographer for the first three Kinks albums. Background This was the last Spectrum album to feature guitarist Robert Fripp, who left shortly after its release to form the band King Crimson. "New Spirit Rises", the first Spectrum single to be released, would be the only Spectrum single to include Fripp. "New Spirit Rises" was written by Fripp, during a tour of the Soviet Union; he was inspired by the work of KGB agent Yuri Nosenko, who was smuggled to the United States and given a hero's welcome by U.S. politicians. Critical reception AllMusic's Ned Raggett has described Look Out for Aliens as "one of Spectrum's best."
