Waves One-Knob Crack!!!!!!

I've had no luck with limiter plugins. I have tried CLSyphat, iZotope Trash, and Atomics Helix but I always end up with a dull sound. Many of my wave file are just fake or synthetic clips played back at different tempos with different levels. I have other compressor/limiter plugins and they all sound different. I'm using a Focusrite Scarlett 2i2 with maudio firewire. I am very new to audio so any advice is welcomed!

1.Q: Database access from both client and Server I have a web form in ASP.NET using EF 4.1. My application will be deployed on both desktop and web servers. Users will fill this form in their own PCs (on windows XP or Windows 7) and on my web server. The form is hosted by an external website and I just pass the result to mine. Now the question is, how I can use my.edmx to connect both databases? I've solved the problem to save on web server but I dont know how to use my.edmx file to connect to client server. I will appreciate any help, Thank you

A: First of all, you will need to implement some kind of synchronization between your servers to ensure you have the same data structure in both.

Databases are not what you want to rely on for this. Once you have your data in sync, you can use EF on both and reference your data sources. However, you will also need to be aware that using EF on both means that you are using two, independent copies of your data. This means that EF has no way of knowing that a change you make to the server-side data is not reflected on the client-side. Additionally, you will need to be concerned about changes on the server-side and changes that occurred on the client-side. For the latter point, there are a number of ways to do synchronization. If you wish to implement your own, you can look at the source code for the two frameworks which includes Entity Framework on both client and server. I would recommend using OData on the client-side and either reading from a "simple" repository of data, which will expose basic CRUD operations from the server-side, or using OData, which will allow you to expose the full power of the server-side. We are just short of midnight and we are
