Q: What is the correct profile to use when using golang/etc with Kubernetes? I am a GO developer and new to Kubernetes (and Go). I have followed this thread to run Go in Kubernetes. I have also created a Go service and controller. But, I do not know what is the correct profile to use. Currently, it seems that the profile I am using is the latest version of Go. A: The default `golang` profile already comes with recommended security fixes and build tags. Make sure you also follow the best practices for safe deployment, particularly: Use of InsecureSkipTLS. Use of BuildTags. Use of BuildConstraints. You can't really out-perform the team that knows their way around Go and Kubernetes and they don't just hand it out for free. As for "what is the correct profile to use", that's a philosophical question really. :-). You're given everything you need to get up and running and almost always don't need to understand or care what the exact configuration is. Use it like you use a hammer - you pick the one that fits the job. Sebastian Junger's Yemen series, Netflix's first-ever original documentary series, is up for seven Emmys. The docs won the support of a Democratic senator and the president of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. The American media landscape is littered with disappointing documentary series: Star Trek: Discovery, Amazon's The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel, Showtime's The Affair, HBO's Ballers, BBC America's Killing Eve, and many others. It's unclear why Netflix decided to pick up an unauthorized project about a deadly military operation in a remote country instead of something more normal. But the series is high-concept and stunningly shot, and feature the same endlessly dynamic detail and character studies as Junger's previous best work. The series kicks off with a montage of fleeting images of the horrors of the Yemen conflict and follows the U.S. military ♦
