Get it here: How do I iterate through all the characters of an object? I am a beginner at Angular2, so I apologize if this question is trivial, but after searching for a while, I haven't found a clear answer. I am currently working on a project using the Angular2 framework. I have a component that contains a variable of type string. This is populated from the server. I want to show a dialog box every time the user types in an entire word from the string, such as 'Harry Potter' or 'The Hobbit' or whatever. From what I have researched, I am not limited to only the string itself, I can get the size of the string and compare it to the length of the string. My question is how do I iterate through every single character of the string, comparing it with the length of the string? A: You can iterate all characters, this would be done in ngFor property of an element `{{item}}` edit If you want to do it in console, you can do this

for(let i = 0; i
