You will have to use extension functions to get at your own nodes in document instances. In your case, you could probably use: declare function update($file) { for $n in doc($file)/* return $n } A few weeks ago, The OA announced its second trailer which pretty much confirmed what I had suspected at the time: there was more to the OA than the eponymous girl who left her present-day home and mysteriously reappeared in the past. As of now, this isn't a hugely significant release of information, but it's also not a stone unturned either. Next month's release of the show's second season — which introduces us to a fellow prisoner of an institution on the same planet as Olson — will either offer some major insights or leave us where we are in terms of our questions. We don't know for certain how much of the show's mythology we will be seeing this season, which means there are plenty of unanswered questions, but the first e79caf774b

Idiopathic respiratory distress syndrome (IRDS) is a form of acute respiratory failure characterized by impaired lung development in infants. It is closely linked to prematurity. In this paper, we report an adult with respiratory distress who had both features of IRDS and severe bronchitis. We believe this patient had both IRDS and bronchitis which were the two major etiologies of his respiratory distress. Mount Farquhar Mount Farquhar () is a large, pyramidal mountain with steep, partly ice-free north and west sides on the coast of Marie Byrd Land, Antarctica. The mountain stands north of Mount Valentin and has steep, partly ice-free northwest and southwest slopes. The peak was first mapped by the United States Geological Survey from ground surveys and U.S. Navy air photos, 1959–65. It was named by the Advisory Committee on Antarctic Names for James C. Farquhar, a U.S. Navy aviation machinist's mate at Hallett Station in 1961, who was killed in an
