The FIFA franchise began in 1992 with the introduction of FIFA Soccer, and the series has shipped over 200 million units to this day. FIFA 20 takes the series into the latest generation of consoles, and is designed to allow every skill level to play, as well as suit both competitive and casual fans. The aim with FIFA 22 is to create the most authentic football experience, using what we learned from previous FIFA games and the feedback from players and the wider community. The key philosophies this year are: Tight AI - Our AI is extremely intelligent and reacts quickly to changes in the game situation, allowing you to improve your tactics and game plan quickly and intelligently. Scoreline Understanding - The game now displays the scoreline when you have a quick look at the result of a restarted game. This allows you to play without the distraction of every goal being at your fingertips. Player Knowledge - In addition to the player model, the key player attributes of pitch awareness, decision making, speed and tactics have been improved in each of the eleven national teams. Teammate Awareness - Off the ball behaviour has been improved to mimic real life as we find that our players find it difficult to predict what their teammates are going to do. Virtual Crew - A number of improvements have been made to the virtual spectators, TV commentators, stadium ambience and crowd movement. Additional Ball Physics - In addition to the AI, we have been able to improve the ball physics to better replicate the game of football and make the game more comfortable to play. New Real Player Motion - We have implemented a new engine that allows us to put the player’s joints where they are in the real world. This allows us to capture the three-dimensional movements of the players, which creates much more accurate player movement. Realistic Player Pitch Sensitivity - Players now look at where the ball has moved and react to it appropriately Improved Ball Movement - Players now react to the direction of the ball when in possession, as well as darting and twitching to exploit defensive space when the ball is passed to them New Focus Screen - The Focus Screen now shows you more information than ever before, allowing you to make more informed decisions on the ball, and get more information about the pitch ahead of you. Real Momentum - You can now feel the momentum of the ball and the actions of your player by pressing the L2 or R2 buttons. New Real-
