"This is a new way to bring the world of FIFA to life on PlayStation," said Jeff Gamet, vice president and general manager, EA SPORTS, "We're thrilled to be working closely with the incredibly talented team at Visual Concepts and be able to immerse fans in a fully-featured, 360 degree, real-time version of FIFA 22." "The combination of the FIFA football game engine and the technology we have built is like nothing we have seen before," said Marc Emser, Creative Director and Senior Producer, FIFA, "PS4 is the perfect fit for FIFA as its high-resolution and power provides the best visuals possible for the game." As with previous FIFA games, teams will be able to compete as a single team or individually in the Ultimate Team mode, head-to-head against real-life opponents in World Leagues, or play as a single player in offline modes like International Teams and Training. FIFA 22 on PlayStation 4 is scheduled to launch in Europe on February 13th and North America on February 20th. More information on the game can be found at www.easports.com/ps4fifa. The PlayStation®4 will be available from retail stores and from PlayStation.com starting September 17, 2013, in your country. The game, available exclusively from PlayStation Store, is priced $59.99. Games Press is the leading online resource for games journalists.
