If you are leading a second family or an individual, the use of this key will be compatible with your own home.The present invention relates to the field of voice recognition and more specifically to a voice input device and a system and method for providing voice instructions or commands to a remote service provider. The increasing popularity of the internet has provided individuals with greater access to a wide range of information. Such accessibility provides individuals with large amounts of data and information that is readily available. For example, individuals that are travelling can now check flight itineraries, view maps for directions to a remote location, obtain hotel reservations and check weather conditions, among other things, in advance of arriving at their destination. It is expected that this trend will continue as individuals have more access to different forms of information over the internet. While having access to vast amounts of information is convenient, it is often difficult for individuals to search for and to locate desired information. This difficulty is compounded by the fact that certain information, such as weather conditions, that is not as readily available as other
