I am stumped. I have never met a Muslim! For all I know, there is no religion out there that teaches you to be fair and treat others like you wish to be treated. I was born in South Africa to a Christian Black father and a Jewish Black mother. I have lived in five countries in the world and served in the South African National Defence Force. I have been arrested and detained by various police forces, including the elite S.A.S.D. unit for protest activities and I have been beaten and tear-gassed by those same police and arrested again for the same actions. I have never met a Muslim. I have never met a Hindu, Buddhist or Jew either. I have never met anyone who drinks wine, smokes or takes illicit drugs. I have been involved with ex-convicts and they are mostly Christian, with some Muslims (who did not convert to Christianity). I have lectured in religious studies and multiculturalism courses and the same is also true in my other academic field of interest, which is public administration. In almost every country I have lived in, I have never encountered a Muslim. I have never read about or been to a Muslim country. I have not experienced a Muslim country in the flesh. I am doubtful of their negative quality towards their fellow man. How can you help others when you hate others, especially in such a crucial area as government? How can you help each other when you regard each other as enemies? How can you help others when you treat those who are different in ways that are largely regarded as un-Islamic? They consider non-Muslims to be infidels, while they practice and insist on the supremacy of their "enemy"? The only thing that I can say is that I have never asked these people about their beliefs. I have never tried to debate religion with them. I have never tried to prove that Islam is a religion of peace. I have never tried to explain why I think that their Quran is corrupted and heretical. I have never tried to explain why I think their "book of books" is a despotism and a dictatorship. I have never tried to explain to them how their book of books lead them to such practices as terrorism, persecution, extremism, discrimination, intolerance, intolerance, attack on freedom of expression, oppression, oppression, slavery and destruction of any sexual freedom. These are things I have tried to explain and prove to any person, whether Muslim or not. I have seen many Effect of life-styles on the reduction of mortality from stroke in the Principality of Monaco. The impact of life-styles on the reduction of mortality from stroke in the Principality of Monaco, a country with a low level of coronary heart disease mortality, was evaluated in 5.5 million subjects free of cardiovascular disease (FD) or stroke (SIS) at baseline followed-up for a median time of 10 years (8,375 male subjects and 3,845 females). Moderate alcohol consumption was related with a decreased risk of FD and SIS; the wine-to-beer ratio is about 3:2. Heavy smokers are related to an increased incidence of both FD and SIS; the difference in mortality between heavy and moderate smokers was significant (p less than 0.05). In conclusion, this study shows that the impact of life-styles on the incidence and survival from stroke appears to be independent of coronary heart disease risk factors. Sulfuretin acts as a potassium channel agonist, but not as a calcium channel blocker. Sulfuretin, a sulfoximine alkaloid from the roots of Aconitum carmichaeli Debx, is a selective calcium antagonist for the cardiac L-type calcium channels. This study further examined its mechanism of action. At 10^{-7} mol/l, sulfuretin did not alter the K^+ current through calcium-activated K^+ (Kca) channels in isolated single cells of neurons from rat cerebral cortex. However, 10^{-5} mol/l sulfuretin reversibly increased the whole-cell currents by activating inwardly rectifying K^+ (Kir) channels, and the activation was not blocked by Gd^{3+} , tetraethylammonium or charybdotoxin. In accordance, sulfuretin failed to block the calcium current in guinea pig ventricular myocytes.

Q: Breadth First Search Breadth First Search has an incorrect implementation! I am trying to understand it, but cannot. This Wikipedia article says that it's using a queue with two pointers. This Wikipedia article says that it's using a linked list. Any more details on how it works? A: What you are seeing is a very naive implementation, that assumes an infinite amount of nodes to add to the queue. On average, the algorithm will go out at least twice as far as the distance to the point of termination. The actual distance
