It's easy to use, works with a variety of different type of streams and it comes packed with a bunch of helpful tools and features. Quickstart You can easily get started with FLVtoTV Media Center by clicking on the FLVtoTV icon that's right next to the "Okay" button. After doing this, you should see a small window popup up with three options for you to choose from: Play, Pause/Seek, and Stop/Resume. However, should you prefer, you can simply use the FLVtoTV Media Center website where you'll be able to configure it to your liking, set up a playlist, set your preferred streaming options and manage the available streaming devices. FLVtoTV media center. Media Player: To stream media contents from your Windows PC to your local DLNA devices, you'll have to start by installing the FLVtoTV Media Center media player. After doing this, all you have to do is click on the play button, locate the media you want to stream, choose a streaming device to use for your PC, and press play. FLVtoTV for DLNA streaming and Internet TV FLVtoTV Media Center also enables you to stream media contents from the internet. However, FLVtoTV Media Center DLNA streaming server is used to stream video and audio contents from your device to other DLNA devices within your home network. FLVtoTV streams media contents from local and online sources to DLNA devices in your home network. Viewing Web pages and videos As FLVtoTV Media Center is mainly a free, no-cost media player, it doesn't boast many features that help you view Internet TV in the same way as programs such as Sky TV. However, it does offer you a few basic functions that enable you to watch websites and videos. For example, you can click on the tools menu where you'll find a number of options for managing and organizing your media library. Not only does

NYC - mixed precipitation is forecast today. Sun and a few clouds are the order of the day, and highs will be in the 50s today. Saturday looks like a sunny day with light easterly breezes. It's cold out there... but it will get even colder. Monday's high in Washington, D.C., is set at 39 degrees, and it will be seven degrees colder than that by Sunday morning. Flurries are possible at times, and after midnight the temperatures will fall to the upper teens to below freezing and continue to do so throughout the workweek. Tuesday? It will be partly sunny and breezy with highs at 31 to 34 degrees. Wednesday looks even colder, with highs near 30. Storms may pass near your location. The Arctic Blast is intensifying in much of the country, making it feel much colder than it really is. Highs will range from 30s to lows in the single digits by Tuesday. But don't worry, it's nice and warm down here. The Arctic Front is bringing snow and rain into the Northeast by Friday. Temperatures will fall to 30s in parts of the Southeast and Northeast. Icebergs and big waves are affecting the Iceland coast and are most likely to strike Ireland, England, and Wales this week. You can check the weather by visiting our website, from your smartphone, or Android app (the link is in the description). Scientists say the icebergs will continue to grow as well, and should hit the United States on Tuesday or Wednesday, where they will remain for several days.
