Field of the Invention This invention relates to a grinding apparatus for grinding a workpiece by a grinding wheel, and more particularly to a grinding apparatus in which the grinding wheel can be advanced and retracted relative to the workpiece with a high degree of accuracy in the movement of the grinding wheel. In the formation of various parts, such as a cylinder, by cutting using a grinding machine, it is important to grind the workpiece to a predetermined shape and size while obtaining as accurate a finishing as possible, so that the finished surface can be as smooth and attractive as possible. One known example of a conventional grinding apparatus is shown in FIG. 1. In this drawing, a grinding machine 31 includes a feed table 32 for supporting a workpiece W and a slide table 33 for supporting a grinding wheel WG. Feed table 32 can be moved in the direction of arrow a by a hydraulic cylinder to bring the workpiece W into a desired position. Slide table 33 can be moved in the direction of arrow b by a hydraulic cylinder to bring the grinding wheel WG into contact with the workpiece W. In this prior art apparatus, a spindle unit 34 is also provided. The spindle unit 34 is movably mounted with respect to the feed table 32, and holds the workpiece W on a spindle 35 to rotate the workpiece W around its axis. The spindle 35 is rotated by a spindle motor 36. A speed reduction gear 37 is provided to reduce the speed of rotation of the spindle 35 by a certain percentage, and a clutch 38 is provided for coupling and 0cc13bf012
