This is a long video, I know. This took me a few months to make. The reason being is because of two things. 1. The first time I encountered a Siren, and it took me about 8 months to record it. 2. The fact that it looks like I slowly improved at making videos over the course of its development. You can find it on the usual forums, and maybe even buy it if you find it for sale there. The license terms (included in the game files) state that you're allowed to have as many copies of the soundtrack as you want, for as long as you like, but that you can't include it as a part of your personal copies of the game, or distribute it on any other site, for free or for sale. In return, though, we ask you to allow us to include a small link to the order form for this soundtrack in your personal website. This can be something as simple as the link: So, please, if you make a copy of the soundtrack for yourself, do not include it in any downloadable packages (files from torrent sites, or any website which automatically includes your personal data), or sell it, or otherwise offer it for sale, because that violates the license terms. You can take the music wherever you like, however, but you can't include it in any other projects you make with the game, because that would violate the license terms. Thanks for reading! I've added the music to the Extras section on the main game page, in an album called 'Slightly Magic'. It's high-quality mp3s. The exact link is: Comments and criticisms are welcome, but please do not post a link to the main Slightly Magic page, or to the Extras section with the music in it. If you do post such a link, please do so at your own risk. We will not take any responsibility for the validity of the music. We're just doing it to help with the music search and to make it easier for people to find it. Great job! I've always wanted to do a soundtrack for a game like this, so I'm glad you did it. I wish I had the time to make one, but I couldn't even come close to completing an album like that. The game's story is nice too, but the music is my favorite part. I think it's a great name for a soundtrack for a game like this, where the whole tone of the game revolves around ideas of magic and fantasy. This kind of story is the kind that brings to mind the old (if it exists)

What's new in Warhammer: Vermintide 2 - Forgotten Relics Pack:

Diner Dash:® Hometown Hero™ is a video game based on the classic diner game called Diner Dash, developed by Babycastles and published by Gameloft. It is the first game released by Gameloft in the series Diner Dash: Shadow Capers®, which is an expansion of the original Diner Dash game that adds characters, mini-games, and restaurants. Ninja Dash: Hometown Hero and Metal Slug Frenzy are the two modes for single player. Hometown Hero is a running game mode where players dash from one town to another unlocking restaurants. Metal Slug Frenzy is like Diner Dash, but in Snake and Billy's Arsenal. You start out with a tank and a sniper rifle but lose the tank on the way to a town. Players can unlock characters, vehicles, weapons and businesses. Bible Blitz: Hometown Hero The Hometown Hero mode is similar to the Diner Dash series, where players do not have to build a restaurant. Players simply travel from one location to another by clicking and running between each location on a map. Certain types of locations will challenge players, but failing to complete one will not affect game progress. Players unlock restaurants by completing challenges and clearing locations, earning coins, and purchasing items with in-game currency. The in-game currency is acquired by completing challenges, visiting locations, and purchasing items. The main goal of the Hometown Hero mode is to find all the places while collecting the highest amount of coins in each city. Unlocked characters can provide a player with additional help. Players have up to 4 characters to choose from. There are also unlockable buildings and weapons. Players can acquire them by unlocking locations. Frenzy mode Metal Slug Frenzy is a more intense version of Diner Dash, where players start out with a tank and sniper rifle, and at some point loses the tank on the way to a town. Players have to complete the five different missions of Diner Dash (Start, Up and Down, Battle to the Finish, Disc, Return to Diner), which are completed by clicking and running while jumping. After each level players collect the amount of coins in the path before finishing the challenge which awards the player with a weapon or an upgrade. It also introduces four new characters and some new locations, like the munitions factory. Being the quicker way of the two, the frenzy mode mode is not as condensed and organized as the standard Diner Dash

American Academies Recognition of the Washington Metro Area`s New Line: The nation`s top transportation advocates gathered in Washington on Monday to celebrate a new rail line linking Dulles International Airport to the District. The Federal Transit Administration and the Federal High Speed Rail Authority announced that the Washington Metro area was the third metropolitan area in the nation to receive credit for an integrated, complete high-speed rail transportation system. "The Metro is the nation`s busiest rail system, and this new line will boost our ridership even more," said Metro General Manager D.C. Jeff Premo. "We are delighted to have been recognized by these national organizations. I`m proud of our team for meeting the high standards that they have set for us." The highway and rail system loop will be called the Silver Line. It will feature stops in West Falls Church, Sterling, Dulles, Vienna and its connecting station in Dulles. It is expected to be ready for commuter rail service in mid-2010 and full Metro rail service in 2012. The transportation funding provided by the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority and Metro was an important part of the Monorail Service Chapter in the two-year, $5.6 billion transportation tax legislation signed into law by President Bush. The transit stations in West Falls Church, Sterling and Dulles will be funded through a Transit Station Improvements Program, and Metro will provide buses to replace the Monorail to passengers wishing to take the 1.9 mile trip to Dulles. At the West Falls Church station will be a one-way tunnel across Telegraph Road that will allow for safer pedestrian access and an additional bus station.
