Step 1 Click on the trashcan icon, and choose Select > Tool Options. In the options pane, drag and drop the Line, Pen, Polygon and Eraser tools so that they are all on the right side of the pane. They will appear in their standard positions in the Toolbox. Step 2 Click the Brush tool and drag the tip of the brush around the edge of the image to make a soft-edged brush. Change the brush's size to about 50. Step 3 With the Brush tool active, drag down and slightly to the right from the left most part of the image to make a copy of the top edge. When you are done, the new edge should be identical to the edge of the original image. Step 4 Switch to the Brush tool again and make an area of color about 15 pixels to the right of the original edge, with a width of about 40 pixels. Step 5 Click the Brush tool and drag downward from the top of the edge of the image to make a soft-edged brush with a large brush size. Step 6 Click the Brush tool and drag a thin brush over the canvas to draw a slightly angled line. Step 7 Make a hard-edged brush about 35 pixels wide by 55 pixels high. When the brush is active, click and drag it over the edge of the image to create a horizontal line that extends below the line you just drew. Step 8 Use the Eraser tool to erase a small, hard-edged brush that is about 15 pixels wide and about 50 pixels long. Step 9 Click on the Pen tool and click on the bottom of the canvas, about 15 pixels to the right of the center of the image. Make a small hard-edged brush about 15 pixels wide by 15 pixels high. Step 10 Click on the Brush tool and make a soft-edged brush slightly thicker than the brush you created in Step 2. Step 11 Make a brush with a size of about 75 pixels wide and about 100 pixels high. Make the edges of the brush hard, and then click on the Brush tool and drag the brush across the canvas about 55 pixels to the right of the top edge of the image. Step 12 Click on the hard-edged brush you created in Step 10. Drag the brush downward so that it is

The ramblings of a pilgrim, a transplanted northern californian, ordained Baptist Minister, walking in the woods with Jesus. Saturday, July 22, 2010 Scripture Reading: Colossians 3:16-17 As I have often said, wherever I go, I take my Bible. Today, I was in the more rural part of the state and I found a quiet place, so I sat and read. As a student of the Bible, I note many things, that is, at least from a global perspective. Anyway, the first thing I noted about my reading was that it was in a different perspective than the previous verse. To get a little into that, I have a habit of reading to find verses that seem to be speaking in a personal way to the people in the books. That is why I read "thus speak to you..." and not "therefore" or "for" or "because". I'm not saying I know what the authors were doing, but I'm sure their intention was to speak to those people. The other thing I noted was that some people take these verses and try to make the points that you are only a Christian if you fit their understanding of what a Christian is. I've had people argue to me that when I "take up my cross", that means that I'm supposed to be accepting one particular gospel. Well, here's a verse, and you can interpret it however you like, whether that's in line with the views of the NT writers or not. This is, of course, not the end of the discourse. There are many other points that are made in this section. However, I always come back to my favorite verse from this section. (I know it's not the longest, but it's the favorite and I want to remind myself and you of it). Paul says that he would "not condescend" to return to the Jerusalem. That is, he says that he would be content with whatever he received from God. That could also mean that he does not need, or want or require anything. He's not in a place to say, "Oh, you're in, you need this." Of course, there is also the part about Paul going to Jerusalem when he wanted to make sure that the thing that he preached there was correct. There is another portion of the sermon as well. This one is a bit long, so I'll give you the remainder at the
