Using a case of limb pain in an acute pain medical ward to demonstrate the value of early pain assessment. A 46-year-old woman was admitted to the acute pain ward of a major teaching hospital complaining of left arm and hand pain, which she described as moderately severe, constant and localised. However, her pain was only scored at a few occasions on the visual analogue scale (VAS) from 0 to 10, despite her complaint of being awake when the pain started. After consultation with the neurosurgeon who had performed a th
