About A quick and easy way to find the print ready files for your favorite titles. For books, CDs, DVDs, and more. AUSTIN — For the first time in eight years, the University of Texas System Board of Regents is adding a member with a background in the oil and gas industry. In an interview last week, regents chairman Thomas Shannon said the board decided to appoint a regent with oil and gas experience because the state's energy landscape is changing and board members need to be able to handle energy-related issues. "There are some new challenges with what the energy landscape looks like in Texas and the United States, given the transition of what we have seen in the last few years, and I think there is some opportunity for us to have a board member with an energy background," Shannon said. "I don't believe we have ever had an energy board member." Shannon named Christopher Sherwood, a former adviser to Republican Gov. Rick Perry, to the board on June 14. Sherwood is a partner in Houston's Sherwood Energy LLC, which he founded with business partner James Coffee. In an interview last week, Sherwood said, "I don't know a fraction of what the regents do. We are fortunate enough to have a very strong team that is working to serve the state of Texas.... There are very capable individuals on the board." Sherwood has previously served on the board of the Texas Windstorm Insurance Association. He also served in several Texas state agencies, including the Texas Department of Transportation, according to his bio on the regents' website. Regent Jeffrey McCaig, who was part of the group that helped create the University of Texas System a decade ago, is also a member of the board. He was one of the only other regents to have held an energy job. He is a partner in the energy-services firm Turner Advisory, which was co-founded by Chris Woodruff, another regent and a former chairman of the Texas Democratic Party. McCaig was chief executive officer of El Paso Electric Co. The regents are charged with making sure the UT System meets its finances, although the legislature created them to be above state budget politics. They also oversee UT's board of regents. McCaig said the other board members have been "very fortunate" to have members who bring a variety of experiences to the table, but Sherwood's experience in the energy
