dispenser and in particular to a unit that includes a bottle in which a quantity of a liquid may be stored and from which a measured quantity of that liquid may be dispensed to another fluid receptacle, such as a container for mixing with water or another liquid. There are a number of known devices for dispensing measured quantities of a liquid from a bottle. Examples of such devices include those shown in U.S. Pat. No. 2,183,227 of H. L. Hutchens (1937); U.S. Pat. No. 2,834,034 of G. D. Perry (1958); U.S. Pat. No. 3,646,978 of G 6d1f23a050
