How to get premium account of flightradar24.com or download.By Cynthia Lee DUNGUY — As state legislators debate whether to eliminate the city's power to enter into lease agreements, officials say it's a question of what services a city can provide. "We're not saying we don't have services to offer. We have customers with people that shop here, and we have customers that work here," Dunguy City Manager Randy Kirk said. "All we ask for is the same services that other cities get." State Rep. Barry Goldwater, R-Hesperia, and Assemblywoman Julie Morrison, D-Hesperia, are leading the charge to give the city of Dunguy the right to enter into lease agreements for a variety of economic development needs. The legislation would overturn a May 2014 state Supreme Court ruling that found the city was required to go through a formal process to rezone property in Dunguy and create a new study area before it could enter into a lease agreement for a hotel, said Rep. Goldwater, who is sponsoring the bill. The Supreme Court ruled the process was unfairly harsh, and began holding up other cities from entering into such agreements. "It's unfair for us to make the mistake of acting as a developer and then bring in an attorney to try to pass a law to take that away from us," Rep. Goldwater said. Dunguy City Manager Randy Kirk said if the city enters into a lease agreement, it would fulfill the requirements to keep its c6a93da74d
