Peptic ulcer (PU) is the least common but one of the more devastating complications of chronic gastroesophageal reflux disease (GERD). Treatment of the ulcerative phase of GERD has been shown to decrease the risk of recurrent ulceration and significantly improve quality of life. This study investigates the association between PU and reflux-related symptoms (abdominal bloating, regurgitation and heartburn) in patients with chronic GERD pre- and post-cholecystectomy (CC). There were 194 patients in total. One hundred and eighty-eight patients had documented GERD pre-CC and thirty-six patients had GERD post-CC. Thirty-one of the thirty-six post-CC patients had a prior history of PU. There were no differences in demographic characteristics between the pre- c6a93da74d
