Easy Driver Packs V5.2.5.5 (2012) [WinXP Win7 32bits Win7 [REPACK] 64bits] 804 great little tool. the simple interface made it a breeze to install each of the drivers and configured my laptop so that it all worked. i've been battling with installing 7 (win7) and getting it to boot on my asus laptop, and didn't have too much luck. after this tool, i managed to install it and got my fan to work again. i'm a fan of this little tool, and hope to use it in the future. thanks for this program. i have been dealing with this graphics driver issue for a while now. it's good to know that this program existed. after so much trial and error i am now able to use all of my external monitors. this is a lifesaver. i've had a similar problem with the 32bit built of win7 x64. the application that i have created doesn't work correctly on x64. the problem is that i have a script that automatically closes the current application, then opens the application i want to run and then relaunches the application i have just closed. in win7 x64 the script no longer works correctly. after a brief investigation, i found out that the function to close the application and then reopen it is not available to 64bit applications. this was a major issue for me because i am developing in visual studio 2008 sp1 and i have no idea how to go about fixing this. in short, i have to run my scripts in a 32bit environment and then i have to close the application i want to run. when i open the application i want to run i have to close the application i am currently working on. solution: i have decided to install wine x86 on my 64bit win7 machine and to develop in the 32bit visual studio environment. with a little work i can then port the application to run on 64bit. i may just have to turn off the application's ability to run in the 64bit environment in order to get it working.

Easy Driver Packs V5.2.5.5 (2012) [WinXP Win7 32bits Win7 64bits] 804

i was trying to install sp3 for win7, and was getting a message that i had to upgrade my "services". i right clicked on the start button and clicked "services", and found that only the ones i wanted were running. when i right clicked on the "services" tab in the start menu, i found that there were over 40 services running. i have win7 x64 rc build 7100. i am having some very strange issues with visual studio 2008 pro sp1. when developing a web application i cannot add any web content forms. i can add web forms but when using the web content form i do not get the 2nd dialog allowing me to select the master page. it just never comes up. this has become quite annoying. i can however create a content form by right clicking on the master page and selected create content form. other than that i have no issues running vs2008 sp1 under win7 x64. driver easy is compatible with windows 7 64-bit and windows 7 32-bit operating systems. when installing, you will be prompted to install the 32-bit or 64-bit version of windows. the download link will be in the download area. run driver easy to begin the installation process. the software scans all drivers and checks to see if there are any good current updates for them and notifies you about them and just to mention how easy the interface is anyone can use it and i definitely recommend buying pro which i do not have but wish to have. driver booster pro is a complete and top-notch driver updater that's easy to use and learn. it not only finds and installs driver updates for your pc, but it also has special features like automatic driver update, one-click driver management and more. driver booster pro constantly keeps your pc protected with the latest drivers. additionally, it also installs and updates all of your software and tools like adobe creative suite,
