This is equivalent to and automatically performs the same process as using the Tagged Image Optimization Best Practices utility found in the Optional Features tools selection. The batch process has a very important distinction: The new Optimized Hierarchy is saved directly to and used by the Lightroom Collections database. The same database is used by the professional and web Application Services to organize and save images that they've edited. Additionally, it now automatically renames the duplicate as a backup, and removes it after making your duplicate. This also lets you get to your next scene faster. Adobe now has a comprehensive Crop Tool that makes it simple to crop around an area to remove unwanted content. Just select the tool from the Image menu. You can also add to the crop box with the Append and Shape tools. Additionally, Adobe now adds a feature to the Crop tool that lets you scale the crop to the size of the canvas space or to your image's pixel dimensions. This is especially helpful if you are trying to crop around an object to remove it from a photo.

They will get you used to most of the functions that you need to know to accomplish your goals. This is a bundled feature – and this is the most useful tool in the whole application. If you have a copy of Photoshop and want to batch download new images for the purpose of resizing, cropping, etc., Photoshop Elements is the best to do this. LOS ANGELES–(BUSINESS WIRE)—Today, Adobe® announced Adobe-certified professional photographers can now publish online using Adobe Stock for immediate access to a massive selection of high-resolution stock images at a smaller cost, and full-featured access for unlimited downloads. A limited beta for Adobe Stock for Creative Cloud subscribers is available to registered members today. In addition to the free and pay stock options available to subscribers, Adobe Stock for Creative Cloud lets fully-licensed photographers and designers upload their own images to the online library, available for licensing, free of charge to all Adobe Stock subscribers by the end of 2019. At the same time, Adobe Stock is also expanded, posting more than one million images (and a total of more than 25 million images), including stock and custom collections, from a new artistic viewpoint, and more images and select collections will be added further in 2019. In addition, Adobe Stock has support for over a dozen new shop-side features such as integrated list of offers, image commenting, and integrated ecommerce and marketing solutions, to help maximize the creative potential of the online library.
