I want to create a tablet version, from what we know that you can do a mobile version from the mobile version; I've created the first version without the tablet, and I've configured on header.inc.php for the tablet version. I've just placed the elements position so it would work. now I want to actually create a page for the tablet version that it could work as the iphone/ipad version I've done this already, but now I want it to actually show the same site as the version for mobile. Is this possible to make this? Or do I need to remake the whole project? A: You have to remake the whole project, since you could just "convert" your mobile version to your tablet version, but now you have to take care of all the "deviations" from the tablet version to the mobile version: Positioning elements CSS selectors for different widths (see CSS selectors) Change fonts and colours Change images etc... On the 5' end of the transcriptional complex, base composition influences the efficiency of transcription termination. Transcription is terminated at a poly(dT) tract by a process called transcription termination. It was shown previously that transcription termination at a poly(dT) tract depends on the sequence and base composition of the poly(dT) tract, and that transcription termination depends on the base composition at the 5' end of the transcript. Here we ask whether transcription termination at a poly(dT) tract also depends on the 5' sequences. We show that sequence-dependent termination at a poly(dT) tract requires the presence of base composition at the 5' end of the transcript, consistent with the conclusion that transcription termination involves cleavage at the ends of the transcript. Interestingly, we find
